

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

In this eFile we announce a new offering at Harty Rushmere Attorneys namely, international trade, customs, and excise services.

We have teamed up with subject matter experts in these specialist fields and identified a world class software solution platform to assist in these areas.

International Trade, Customs and Excise

Harty Rushmere has for many years enjoyed working with clients in various sectors, including transport, technology, travel and tourism, mining, and manufacturing. During the course of carrying out corporate governance, compliance, risk management and other services for our clients, we identified a need to provide additional technical support to our clients in related fields of international trade, customs and excise.

To this end, we are pleased to announce that we have entered into a joint venture with specialists in this field to enable us to offer our clients a full spectrum of related services. The additional service area of Trade, Customs and Excise comprises, amongst other things: compliance reviews for clients involved in imports, exports and/or manufacturing of excisable goods; litigation and dispute resolution services in respect of customs or excise disputes with SARS (Customs); specialist tariff classification and customs or excise valuation advice; advice on and representation in respect of trade remedies and tariff investigations; and support or representation of clients subjected to SARS indirect tax audits and subsequent demands.

As further support, we have also teamed up with the developers of a world class software solution for global trade and shipping. This unique product provides a single digital platform to manage, transform and optimize shipping operations and seamlessly integrates with back-office systems. The solution will help run faster and accurate shipping processing, offers greater visibility into documentation and reduces operational costs and risks, to mention a few benefits.

As this is a new addition to our offerings, we would be happy to arrange a call, meeting, or webinar to introduce the personnel and services on a no charge, no obligation basis. Please feel free to contact Neil Harty (neil@harty.law) or Rod Lichkus (rodli@harty.law) or call us at +27 (11) 8840792.
